Love-crazed orangutan strikes AGAIN!

By MICKEY McGUIRE

Special report

Good grief! Amorous Annie is at it again!

The love-crazed orangutan, who two years ago swung down from a tree to kiss a game park visitor on the lips and strip him naked, has resumed her playful, passionate assaults on unsuspecting males.

In its Dec. 1, 1992 issue, Weekly World News told how French tourist Antoine Strassesu became the first victim of Amorous Annie's own version of The Dating Game.

Since then, Annie has managed to keep her passion in check. But in recent weeks, she's more steamed up than ever.

So far the horny ape has launched her unbridled affection on nine unsuspecting male visitors to the Buruga Game Park on the island of Borneo.

ANNIE'S most recent victim, Max Muller.

She tears the clothes off her male victims — and covers them with kisses

In her sudden "assaults," Annie gives each of her victims a slobbering kiss before ripping the clothes from their backs and sending them slinking away naked as jay birds while crowds of park visitors gawk in amusement.

"That nutty ape is driving us bananas," moaned park supervisor Suko Obeiwi. "All of the animals, including the orangutans, are cordoned off from park visitors.

"But Annie is determined not to be deterred when she gets in an amorous mood. And once she plays out her little love game, she runs off into the jungle and rejoins the other apes.

"If we capture her, we'll take her out of the park and release her with an orangutan colony on another island.

"Officials in Sumatra have granted us permission to release her there."

Annie inflicts on her victims is to their pride. In every attack, hundreds of park visitors of all ages got an eyeful as the naked men made a mad dash for cover, with all their exposed secrets swaying in the breeze.

"I have never been so embarrassed in my life," declared 23-year-old German medical student Max Muller. "I was just walking along, with my video camera when, all of a sudden, this huge hairy ape drops out of a tree and took me in her arms.

"At first, when she kissed me, I thought she was trying to eat me. Then, when she started ripping my clothes off, I thought, 'Oh my God! She's going to rape me.'

"You can imagine the relief I felt when the ape suddenly turned and ran away.

standing there as naked as the day I was born and all those people were looking at me. I had taken me away with her."

Obeiwi said he has received permission to capture Annie safely and remove her from the park.

"We want to be a famous tourist attraction," he explained. "But not because we have an over-sexed ape that has the hots for human

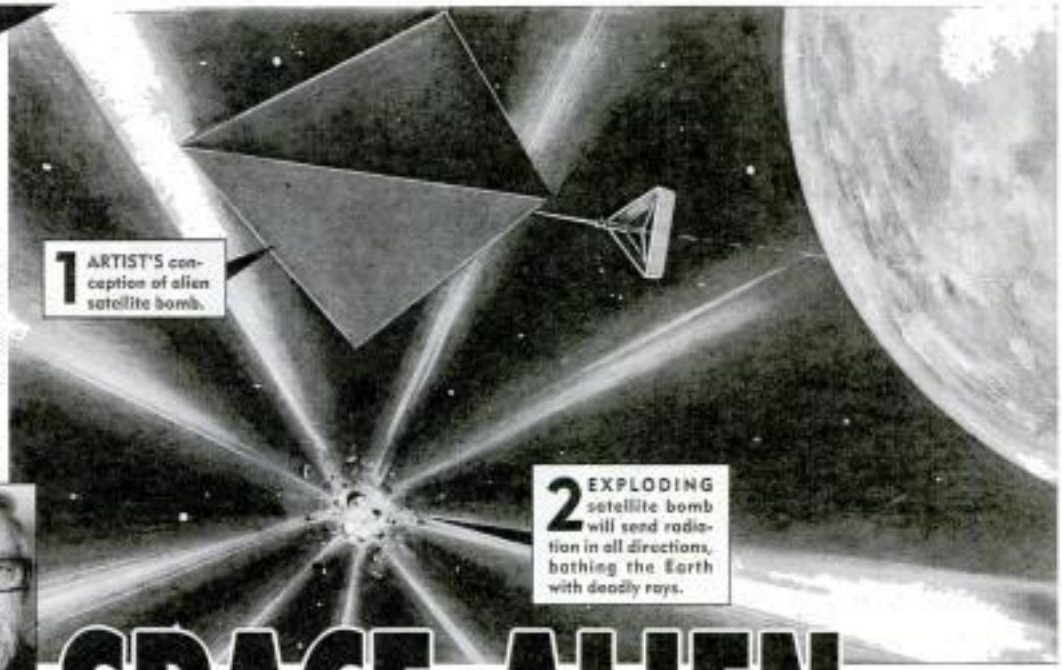
SPACE ALIEN BOMB ORBITING EARTH!



1 ARTIST'S conception of alien satellite bomb.

2 EXPLODING satellite bomb will send radiation in all directions, bathing the Earth with deadly rays.

HOUSTON, Texas — A deadly bomb that was designed and built by space aliens is orbiting Earth and could detonate at any moment — blowing our planet to smithereens!

That's the terrifying contention of Dr. Burton Gleast, scientist and long-time consultant on many of the world's top space projects.

MYSTERIOUS space phenomena are Dr. Burton Gleast's specialty.

"The estimated power of this bomb is more than 1,000 megatons," says Dr. Gleast, 59.

"That's 50,000 times more powerful than the atomic bomb that leveled Hiroshima in august of 1945. It could wipe out three continents in 10 seconds."

The story began after Dr. Gleast, whose specialty is tracking and identifying mysterious space phenomena, was called in to an unidentified space agency for a top-secret meeting.

"They told me their radar had detected a strange new satellite circling Earth and asked me to investigate," says Dr. Gleast.

'It could wipe out three continents in 10 seconds!'

"I tracked and photographed the object with a high-powered camera and noticed there was something that looked like an atomic detonator attached to it.

"When a highly classified rocket mission was authorized to examine it more closely, our worst fears were confirmed. It was an explosive device. There are writings on the bomb in a language unlike any known on Earth.

"And the metal it's composed of is not from here either. But the most alarming aspect of all this is that we don't know how to disarm it.

"The technology involved is far beyond our present abilities."

Dr. Gleast said he wanted to inform the public, but the agency that hired him, which he refused to name out of concern for his safety, was concerned that the news would spark worldwide panic. He says that shortly afterward, there was a break-in at his office.

"I just showed up one day and found my desk ransacked and files missing.

"Someone had taken it all: Statements by explosives experts, records of the exploration mission and — most importantly — the photos."

News of the bomb is particularly disturbing, coming just two weeks after the world press carried the story of a Russian doomsday satellite, armed with 100 atomic warheads, that is plummeting toward Earth.

Weekly World News published that story in its Jan. 25, 1994 edition.

Latest reports say the Russian device is well on the way to being disarmed.

But this alien-made bomb will not be so easily disarmed.

Dr. Gleast claims he still has friends at the world's major space agencies who continue to leak information to him.

He says they inform him that efforts to disarm the device are "getting nowhere fast."

HITLER IS COMING BACK!

Nazi dictator returns from the dead, and it's NO MORE MR. NICE GUY!

By LAUREL BOWIE / Correspondent

Adolf Hitler will return soon from beyond the grave and he's issued a chilling warning to all mankind: This time, no more Mr. Nice Guy!

World-renowned psychic Leandro Mason says he's been in contact with the dead dictator's spirit on three separate occasions — and that the most hated man who ever lived expects to be reincarnated this spring.

"Adolf Hitler is making plans to return to this life, and he fully intends to rule us all this time around," the Pittsburgh seer told a reporter.

"The man who exterminated six million Jews during World War II feels his efforts failed back then because he wasn't ruthless enough — because his kind nature prevented him from making the cold, hard decisions necessary to conquer the world.

"He has told me repeatedly that this time he won't be nearly so soft on those who dare stand in his way."

The super psychic says he first made contact with Hitler's spirit in August 1993 while attempting to reach a client's sister in the hereafter.

"I originally had no intention of speaking to a man like Adolf Hitler, but suddenly, during a routine seance, there he was — and it was obvious he was eager to communicate with someone in the world of the living," Mason said.

"His soul is currently imprisoned in a fiery afterworld coinciding with the popular notion of Hell and he's counting the days till his release — his reincarnation. That day, he says, will come on April 14, 1994, the second anniversary of his death."

Mason says Hitler confirmed an exclusive Weekly World News story revealing that the Nazi madman died of a heart attack in Argentina on April 14, 1992.

Historians previously believed the Fuhrer and his mistress Eva Braun had committed suicide on April 30, 1945, in Berlin.

"Hitler is very proud of the fact that he managed to nearly half a century," the psychic said.

"In fact, he is very proud of all his 'accomplishments,' and each time I contacted him, he bragged on and on about what a brilliant, powerful man he was. Even in death, he fancies himself a great orator."

Mason says Hitler is convinced he will soon be reborn as a baby boy somewhere in the United States — and that he is destined to rule over every man, woman and child on earth.

"He's determined to conquer the world and make it safe for his master race, no matter how much pain, death and destruction he causes," the medium said. "He's convinced he lost World War II because he was too nice a guy, too soft on both his friends and his enemies. And he's told me over and over, 'I won't make that mistake again.'"

Car wash vacuum sucks up drug dealers' cocaine!

Two pistol-packing dope dealers scurried back to a car wash when they discovered 30 rocks of crack cocaine has been sucked up by a vacuum cleaner when a man cleaned the interior of their car.

The crack cocaine was in a small plastic bag lying on the front seat of their car when they drove into the car wash in Akron, Ohio.

They returned to the car wash and held a gun on the manager as they retrieved the drugs from the vacuum cleaner, police said.

Cops later arrested Dwain Johnson, 22, and Steven Carter, 31, on charges of aggravated trafficking in cocaine, carrying a concealed weapon and menacing.

AMERICA'S CHILDREN GROWING FUR ON THEIR TONGUES

Hairball virus spreading throughout U.S. schools!

Hundreds of school children all over America are growing thick hair on their tongues and coughing up hairballs — because of a bizarre disease that is spreading like wildfire.

By JASON MILSTEAD
Correspondent

"I have seven or eight children in my class that can't make it through the day without gagging and choking on the fur balls," said teacher Doris Winstons of suburban Utica, N.Y. "It really disturbs the class but there's nothing they can do about it."

CONCERNED teacher Doris Winstons.

The strange affliction was first revealed in Weekly World News in early 1991 when children in Germany started growing the hair on their tongues.

Since that story hairy-tongued kids have been reported in Austria, France, England and now the east coast of the United States.

"It doesn't help to shave the hair off because it grows right back," Miss Winstons said.

"And after they shave, the hair itches horribly when it's first growing back."

Researchers in Germany believe the disease is spread by a virus that is highly contagious but some children apparently are immune to it.

"When one child in a family has it there's a good chance all the brothers and sisters soon get it," said German researcher Dr. William Kentz.

"But then some children outside that family can be exposed to the virus and never grow even one hair on their aspects of this disease."

Dr. Kentz said only children acquire the disease.

"We haven't had any cases of adults growing tongue hair," the Munich-based expert said.

"And older children who have grown the hair seem to start getting rid of it when they are about 13 or 14 years old."

Now U.S. educators are wrestling with the tough question over whether to allow the shaggy-tongue kids in classrooms.

"It doesn't seem fair for us to kick them out of school,

Flintstone Diet!

©1991 Hanna-Barbera Productions, Inc.

You can lose weight and improve your health at the same time — on the low-fat, easy-to-follow Fred Flintstone Diet!

The amazing regimen, brainchild of New Zealand anthropologist Anthony Hardress, involves eating the same foods that Fred and other ancient cavemen ate. The healthy, low-calorie diet is delicious, high in fiber and rich in vitamins, Dr. Hardress says. It helped primitive man survive in a hostile world, and it can help you do the same, the scientist says.

By LISA MERAKIS
Correspondent

"I was studying the cavemen of middle Europe and I began to realize that compared to modern man, primitive man was remarkably lean and fit," says Dr. Hardress, 46. "Since I was overweight, I decided to try their simple diet and that's how The Flintstone Diet was born.

"It really works — I can attest to that from personal experience. I lost 40 pounds in just six months on caveman food and I feel younger and more energetic than I have in years."

Experts say cavemen like Fred ate foods that contained few calories but were high in fiber. They didn't eat much protein, and if they did get meat it was very low in fat. They ate a great deal of plant food, gorging on flowers in the summertime. And to round out their diet, they snacked on nuts, insects, birds, lizards, rodents, snakes, fish and rabbits.

Eliminating the less palatable parts of an ancient man's diet — staples like mice, snake and insects — and replacing them with modern food that is equivalent in nutrients, Dr. Hardress came up with his amazingly effective Fred Flintstone Diet. Here's a sample menu:

BREAKFAST: Eat a breakfast of cereals rich in fiber and complex carbohydrates. Choose less processed cereals like Raisin Bran, Grapenuts or oatmeal, adding skim milk and raisins for natural sweetening. A glass of unsweetened orange juice provides Vitamin C.

LUNCH: Toss up a salad made of fresh vegetables like lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, carrots, radishes, celery, parsley and chives. Dress it with lemon juice or diluted vinegar and herbs such as oregano, sage, thyme and pepper. "Don't add your favorite high-fat salad dressing," Dr. Hardress says. "And don't add cheese or ham because you'll be adding extra calories if you do."

DINNER: Have a simple breast of chicken or turkey with skin removed, or a slice of fish. Or make a Flintstone Fricassee out of lean meat stewed with frozen peas, carrots, corn, onions, parsley, potatoes or whole brown rice.

SNACKS: Between meals, nibble on grapefruit, oranges, tangerines, radishes, carrots, celery or unbuttered popcorn. Strawberries or other berries are excellent as well.

"Nuts make a good snack because they contain natural fats — but you have to buy them shelled and crack them yourself like the cavemen did," Dr. Hardress says. "If you have to put some effort into opening them up, you'll eat a lot less of them in the long run."

BEVERAGES: Drink diet sodas, diluted fruit juices, and skim milk for calcium.

YABA-DABA-DO! Fred Flintstone's healthy diet is high in fiber and rich in vitamins.

Hit-and-run driver discovers his victim was his twin!

LISBON, Portugal — A hit-and-run driver who killed a pedestrian, surrendered to police — after he learned that the man he killed was his twin brother!

"God is punishing me for the terrible thing that I did," 26-year-old Jose Vegas told Weekly World News in an exclusive interview in the city jail here. "I didn't know I hit my own brother and left him to die in the road.

"I know I should have stopped, no matter who it was. What I did was a terrible thing. But I got scared. I panicked. All I could think of was to get away as fast as I could.

"I drove to a friend's home in Setubal, about 40 miles east of here. The next day, I called Jorge to tell him where I was. His wife Anna answered the telephone. She told me that Jorge had been killed by a hit-and-run driver.

"When I heard that, I almost collapsed. I realized at once that the man I had left to die in the road had been the one person I love more than anyone else on Earth . . . my twin brother.

"I cried for hours. I thought that I must kill myself to pay for my sin. But I can't do that. I must live to make sure Jorge's wife and children are cared for. I will devote my life to their well-being, just as Jorge would have done. That is my penance."

Jose, a bachelor, returned to Lisbon that day and surrendered himself to police. He is charged with reckless homicide and leaving the scene of a fatal accident. A trial date hasn't yet been set, but he is currently free on bond.

"If he hadn't turned himself in, he'd have gotten away scot-free," declared Police Captain Antonio Ruiz. "We had absolutely no clues.

"As it turned out, we didn't need clues. A broken heart solved the mystery for us."

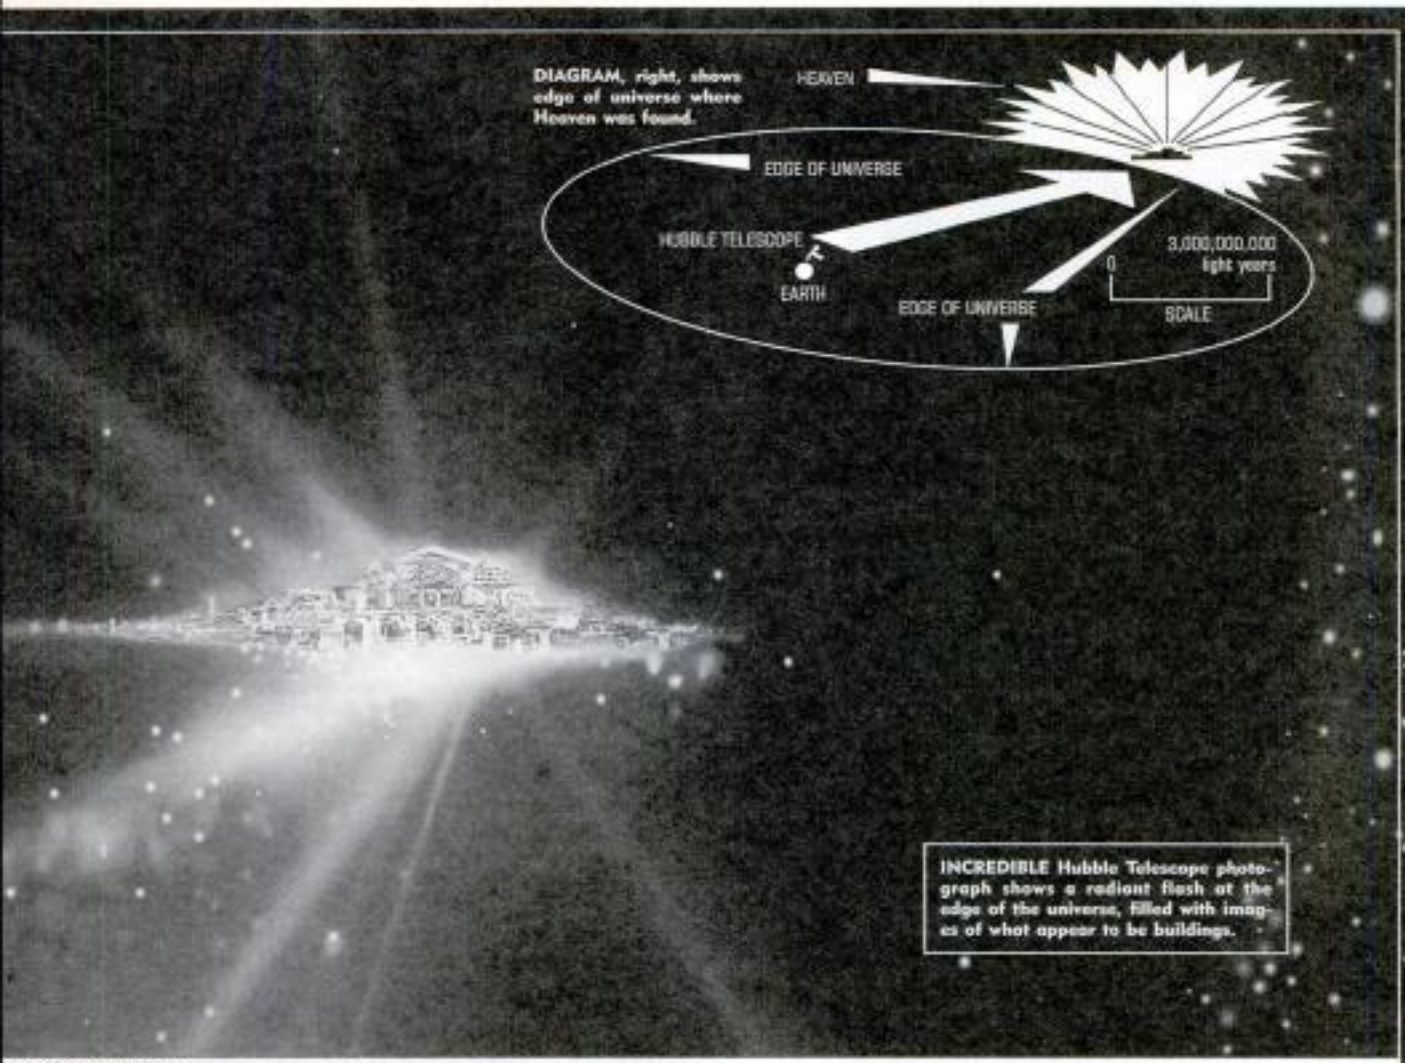
HUBBLE Space Telescope can focus on objects billions of light years away.

POPE JOHN PAUL II has requested copies of the Hubble Telescope photographs.

Incredible image beamed to NASA on December 26!



INCREDIBLE Hubble Telescope photograph shows a radiant flash at the edge of the universe, filled with images of what appear to be buildings.

By RON KINTON
Special correspondent

WASHINGTON — Just days after space shuttle astronauts repaired the Hubble Space Telescope in mid December, the giant lens focused on a star cluster at the edge of the universe — and photographed Heaven!

That's the word from author and researcher Marcia Masson, who quoted highly placed NASA insiders as having said that the telescope beamed hundreds of photos back to the command center at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., on December 26.

The pictures clearly show a vast white city floating eerily in the blackness of space.

And the expert quoted the city is definitely Heaven "because life as we know it couldn't possibly exist in icy, airless space.

"This is it — this is the proof we've been waiting for," Dr. Masson told reporters.

Dr. Masson

"Through an enormous stroke of luck, NASA aimed the Hubble Telescope at precisely the right place at precisely the right time to capture these images on film. I'm not particularly religious, but I don't doubt that somebody or something influenced scope at that particular area of space.

"Was that someone or something God Himself? Given the vastness of the universe, and all the places NASA could have targeted for study, that would certainly appear to be the case."

NASA spokesmen declined to comment on the author's report "pending further analysis of the photographs received on December 26."

In spite of official silence, agency insiders conceded that NASA "has discovered something that might alter the future of all mankind."

They also confirmed that President Bill Clinton and Vice President Al Gore have taken a photographs and have requested daily briefings. Dr. Masson said: "The Hubble Space Telescope was designed to photograph images as far away as the edge of the universe but a lens flaw prevented it from doing so until shuttle astronauts corrected the defect during a recent mission.

"When they finished their work, the telescope trained its enormous glass eye on the outer reaches of the universe.

"From what I understand, the first images it received were nothing more than kaleidoscopic bursts of color and light.

"As adjustments were made, and the focus sharpened, NASA analysts couldn't believe their eyes.

"After checking and rechecking the data, they concluded that the city couldn't possibly be inhabited by life as we know it.

"The only logical explanation was that the city was inhabited by the souls of the dead. As one of my sources put it, 'We found where God Lives.'"

It has been rumored that the space agency has forwarded photographs to Pope John Paul II at his request, but Vatican sources will neither confirm nor deny it.

Dr. Masson, who obtained copies of a single photograph from her NASA sources, says the space agency's next move "will be most revealing."

"This is a chance for NASA to come clean with the public and tell us every-

New Russian boss vows: 'I'll turn Alaska into a concentration camp!'

By LISA MERAKIS / Correspondent

Russkie rabble-rouser Vladimir Zhirinovsky wants to take Alaska back from the Americans — so he can turn it into a giant concentration camp!

The arch-conservative politician has been huddling with powerful cronies for the past month hatching secret plans to build an enormous holding area for every worthless bum, lunatic and crook in his country.

"It'll be the new Siberia," said Ivan Andreyev, a spokesman for Zhirinovsky's reactionary group. "We will use it to contain millions of antisocial men and women and the disloyal, unpatriotic Russians who oppose Zhirinovsky's policies.

"We're going to use Stalin's excellent methods of political control when we come to power and this reeducation camp will be an important part of our policies.

"But we will have a larger population to deal with than Stalin did. That's why we need Alaska."

The reactionaries are demanding the return of Alaska to Russia on the grounds that Russians discovered and claimed the snow-covered land in 1741. They say that the Russian imperial family, which sold it to the Americans in 1867, had no right to dispose of Russian territory.

"The Czar enriched himself at the expense of his own people and we want to see to it that the people are repaid," said Andreyev. "Alaska was a perfectly wonderful land, a source of furs and gold. When the Czar sold it, he robbed us.

"The Americans paid only $7,200,000 for our land.

"That wasn't a fraction of what it is really worth.

"We want it back — or we want the Americans to pay us a fair price — say $58 billion or about $100,000 a square mile."

The incredible Alaska demand is part of a master plan created by right-wing extremist Zhirinovsky, who won enormous support among Russians in the recent parliamentary elections.

The Russian conservative knows that without an immediate infusion of cash, his country's fragile economy could collapse at any time, so he's selling his Alaska plan as a way to bring new money into Russian coffers.

By demanding that the United States return Alaska, he's offering Russians a way out of their troubles and taking a strong stand against a traditional enemy at the same time.

And he's getting 586,400 square miles of land for his concentration camp project.

"Make no mistake, we are considering using our full powers to get Alaska," Andreyev said. "We will be ready to insist that their false claims to that land are valid, they must be ready to accept the consequences.

"Once Mr. Zhirinovsky is in charge of the Russian government we mean to get back what is rightfully ours."

POWER-CRAZED Vladimir Zhirinovsky plans to take back Alaska from the U.S.

ALASKA will be turned into a giant holding tank for Russian creeps.

ARTIST'S illustration of Britain's evil princess.

DEVIL OR ANGEL?

Half of all Brits say Princess Di is a demon from Hell

WORLD'S most admired woman — with her halo intact.

Is the Princess of Wales a devil or an angel? An exclusive poll taken in Great Britain reveals that half of those asked believe Diana's a devil. Only 38 percent thought she was angelic.

Professional Di-watchers are also divided on the touchy question. "Diana is certainly as canny as a fox," says Ross Benson, gossip columnist for the London Daily Express. "Her departure from the body of the Royal Family has not been accompanied by any lowering of profile. She has shown no inclination to shed the mantle of privilege which she acquired by marrying the man she now professes to despise."

But Anthony Holden, a Royal Family biographer, thinks Di is on the side of the angels. "Diana's value to Great Britain, as long as the monarchy survives, is her determination not to raise any more such blinkered emotional cripples," says Holden. The blinkered cripple he is talking about is Prince Charles, Diana's estranged hubby.

When Beethoven's 2nd star Charles Grodin and actor Warren Beatty were swinging bachelors, they often swung with the same sweet young things.

"I was at a party and Beatty put his hand on the back of a girl I was dating, and I took it off," recalled Grodin.

"Warren instinctively makes those moves that are considered socially acceptable but really aren't, like his hand on a part of your girlfriend's body."

Grodin says he beat Beatty to the punch more than once. "Let me just say that I remember more than one occasion where Warren Beatty would call a girl and she couldn't see him because I was there."

The wackiest rumor of the year — Michael Jordan will be the next James Bond! "You would make a great James Bond," gushed Larry King on his CNN talk show. "Would I have to kiss all the women?" wondered Air Jordan.

Top columnist Bob Greene sees Michael meeting the five big requirements of the role.

1. Sophistication. "You ever see Jordan looking anything but elegant? You ever see a guy who wears an expensive suit better?"
2. Heroism. "That's been his job for all his adult life."
3. Athleticism in performing difficult stunts. "Case closed."
4. Sense of humor. "Who'd you expect, Elmer Fudd?"
5. Grace under pressure. "Ask the New York Knicks."

BRAND NEW James Bond? Air Jordon

Greene figures that this is not only the answer to Jordan's problem — where to find a challenge — but also the solution to one of Hollywood's biggest quandaries. How to bring the Bond movies back to life?

"Imagine the first scene in the next James Bond movie," says Greene.

"A man, wearing a white dinner jacket, has his back turned toward us. A beautiful woman approaches, looks twice at him, and then asks him his name.

"And Jordan turns around, flashes that smile, and says in a mid-Carolina accent: 'Bond. James Bond.'"

HOW TO BANISH NEGATIVE THOUGHTS — FOREVER!

You can click unpleasant thoughts off like a bad TV show, restoring a sense of calm and optimism, an expert says — just by following a few simple tips.

"These techniques will work on any unpleasant thought that crops up," says psychiatrist Samuel Turner. "It could be something that pops into your head once or twice. It doesn't have to be a thought you're obsessed with.

"I'd suggest these techniques for picking up your spirits any time you want to rid yourself of an unpleasant thought."

First, says Dr. Turner, when you're bothered by an unpleasant thought, simply say, "Stop!" Then think of something pleasant. Conjure up a picture of yourself lying on a sunny beach, for example, or strolling through cool woods.

"Another way you can rid yourself of an unpleasant thought," says Dr. Turner, "is to do something that requires concentration. It might be going shopping. Maybe it's swimming or engaging in a conversation. It might be doing needlepoint or playing ball."

Deep breathing is also a good way of defeating an unpleasant thought, according to Dr. Turner. Simply sit quietly and breathe in and out very deeply and very slowly. Focus your attention on how relaxed this can make you feel.

"It's a very effective way of short-circuiting tension that is created by bad thoughts," the psychiatrist explains.

Another way to get rid of unpleasant thoughts is to snap a rubber band, worn around your wrist, whenever the thought occurs.

"This is a disruptive stimulus. It will cue you to change your thoughts," he says.

"I've seen patients use these techniques successfully. By using them yourself, you're bound to develop a more cheerful attitude."

The most outrageous claim in U.S. history

GOVERNMENT bureaucrats say Jacques Orneuve is not eligible for Social Security.

Zombie denied Social Security — because he's dead!

By LISA MERAKIS / Correspondent

MIAMI — Haitian immigrant Jacques Orneuve is filing a discrimination suit against the U.S. government claiming he was unjustly denied Social Security benefits — simply because he is a zombie!

The man says officials told him that he is dead and is therefore not eligible for government benefits. But Orneuve, who arrived in the U.S. from Port au Prince 15 years ago, says he has a right to collect just like anybody else.

"I'm not dead — I'm the living dead," says the dark-haired immigrant. "There's a big difference. They treat me like I don't exist.

"But the Social Security guys say their hands are tied. They sent for my records from Haiti and they show I died in 1978. On the basis of that they say they don't owe me a dime.

"I think this is outrageous considering that I came to this country in good faith and worked hard as a laborer for more than 13 years and they took out Social Security all that time. But they say they've never had a zombie try to collect before and they don't know what to do."

Orneuve's bizarre claims came to light during a meeting of Haitian healers at a local church. The man — who appears healthy — stood up and loudly complained about his troubles with the government. His comments later appeared in a church publication, leading to a number of offers from local lawyers willing to help him.

According to local accounts, Orneuve lived in Haiti's capital all his life. Records there show that he died in 1978 at the age of 51, but friends and relatives swear he was brought back as a zombie in a voodoo ceremony several days after he passed away.

'They treat me like I don't exist'

Orneuve and his son were among a group of Haitians who sailed to Florida in 1979, leaving their country behind because of political tensions.

The two used false papers to get work, found an apartment and became U.S. residents.

Last year after Orneuve was injured and could no longer do his job, he filed for Social Security benefits.

A few weeks later he got a call from a government clerk informing him he was ineligible for assistance because he was dead.

"That's outrageous," Orneuve says through a translator. "I died, yes — but I'm alive! How am I supposed to survive? I can't work, I need help. I've been employed for years in this country and I have a right to benefits."

Orneuve and his son say they are planning on hiring an attorney to force the government to change the way it does business.

"They're not above the law, but that shouldn't keep them from obeying the law," Orneuve said.

"They're discriminating against me because of my religion and my physical condition. It's got to stop."

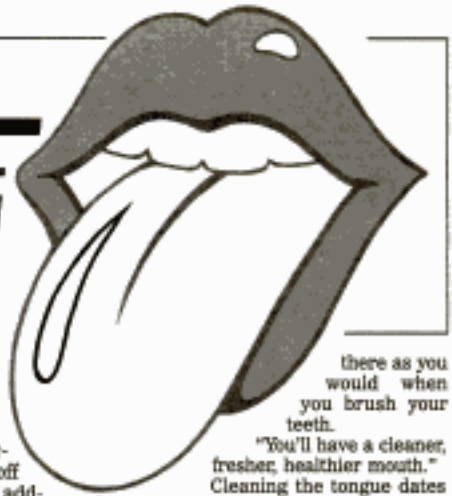
Banish cavities forever — by brushing your tongue!



By DAVE BALLARD / Correspondent

You can have a fresher, healthier mouth and banish cavities for good if you follow this helpful advice:

When you brush your teeth — brush your tongue, too!

"Tongue brushing will cut down tenfold the bacteria stored in your mouth," said an expert in dental hygiene, explaining that the tongue is a reservoir of bacteria that causes tooth decay and bad breath.

"These bacteria form little colonies in the crevices of the tongue and float off to nest in your teeth," he added. "They must be scrubbed off the tongue because they are not removed with mouthwash."

If you only brush your teeth, you're not getting to a major source of bacteria in the mouth — the tongue!

"That's why I suggest you brush your tongue whenever you brush your teeth," he explained. "Put toothpaste on your brush, stick out your tongue and brush a vigorous eight to 10 strokes forward, getting right down in there as you would when you brush your teeth.

"You'll have a cleaner, fresher, healthier mouth."

Cleaning the tongue dates back at least to the 1700s, when the upper classes of Europe used ornate tongue scrapers.

World's smallest violin fits inside a matchbox!

The world's smallest playable violin measures a scant three inches long and one inch wide and is tiny enough to fit into a matchbox!

The teensy instrument has two strings and comes in its own leather-lined, ebony case decorated with gold leaf. It was made by Swiss miniaturist Cornel Schneider in 70 hours and is valued at about $4,000.

Ed Anger's shocking new plan to get criminals off our streets!

I'm madder than Gennifer Flowers on Bill and Hillary's wedding anniversary over a brand-new crime statistic I just read.

Folks, did you know that a tad over 99 percent of all people arrested for crimes are guilty as sin?

You know what that means? It means that this great nation is wasting about $500 billion a year on judges, juries and trials, that's what.

Let's face it. Back when the Founding Fathers set up the rules for running America, occasionally the cops would arrest an innocent person. That's why Ben Franklin and Tom Jefferson made sure everybody had a right to a fair trial by a jury of their peers.

But police weren't nearly as well-trained back in the 1770s, so it was only natural that they'd nab the wrong guy now and then. This is 1994, though, and the average beat cop knows more about the law than our Supreme Court judges did 200 years ago.

When today's state-of-the-art cop makes an arrest, there's no need to waste a lot of time on formalities because we can be darn sure the creep is guilty.

So I've come up with a great new plan for shaping the system up — and shaping it up, pronto.

Of course, all those scheming shyster lawyers out there who make a juicy living by getting criminals off scot-free are going to scream bloody murder. And those fat-cat judges who rake in millions playing God in the courtroom aren't going to be jumping up and down with joy, either.

Under the Ed Anger Criminal Justice Revision Plan, police officers would be allowed to arrest someone and hold a mini-trial right there on the spot — very similar to that TV show The People's Court where Judge Wapner deals out justice fast and furious.

At the end of the trial, the cops would easy-to-read sentencing chart.

These crime and punishment charts would list things like Shoplifting: First offense — 2 years in jail. Second offense — 5 years in jail and so on.

There would even be a section for capital crimes like murder and rape. The cop would simply choose the manner of execution and take the criminal to a special facility equipped for hanging, electrocution, a firing squad, lethal

WORLD'S OLDEST POOCH IS 48!

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Correspondent

A canine codger named Fritzi is the talk of the town in New Haven, Conn. — because the adorable dog has just celebrated his 48th birthday!

Incredibly, the black and white pooch was born in November 1945 and he's still going strong. Experts believe he has lived longer than any other dog in history.

"He's gray around the muzzle and he moves slow like old dogs do, but no one would ever guess he's approaching the half century mark," says his proud owner, Eunice Collins. "His coat is still shiny and he has 14 teeth left — he's doing real good."

The part-time waitress says Fritzi was born on her uncle's farm shortly after World War II ended and lived there until his master's death in 1952. After that the faithful dog moved in with Eunice's family and was given to Eunice as a birthday present.

Along the way the miracle mutt fathered more than 350 pups and worked his tail off as a stock-herding dog. In the last few years his eyesight has begun to dim and he has developed arthritis, but his vet says he's still in good health.

"It was the vet who got everybody excited about Fritzi," recalls Eunice, 58. "He saw an old family picture of Fritzi with my granddad and then he called the local paper.

"Now we're trying to get Fritzi into The Guinness Book of Records. They say the oldest dog lived 29 years — and Fritzi has already got that beat by 19 years!"

Harry S Truman was President when miracle mutt was born in 1945!

HARRY TRUMAN was in the White House when Fritzi was born 48 years ago in 1945.

LOVING OWNER Eunice Collins is trying to get Fritzi into The Guinness Book of Records.

Just for guys: 10 things to know for a great sex life

Sexual foreplay is more than just taking your socks off before crawling into bed, so here are 10 tips to help you sexual slobs.

1. Talk to your lover. Compliment her. Find out what turns her on.

2. Don't rush into sex. Women hate that. Get her in the mood with soft music, low lights and perhaps, a glass of wine.

3. There's no rule that says you have to make love in bed. Be spontaneous and adventurous.

4. Orgasms aren't exclusive to men. Just because you've reached a climax doesn't mean you can fall asleep. Women want to have orgasms, too.

5. Don't be afraid to experiment. Try three different positions when you make love and let her take the lead.

6. Bragging about the size of your manhood and how many women you've slept with isn't confidence — it's boring. Women like men who are relaxed and know what to do, but they hate arrogance.

7. Women get bored with the usual patterns of lovemaking. Vary your technique and try new ways of turning your partner on.

8. Don't douse yourself with after-shave lotion. Too much scent is a passion killer.

9. Explore. Her whole body is a mass of highly sensitive sex zones.

Songs Of God & Country

A history-making collection

They have sung the praises of God, and they have sung the praises of our nation. They have lifted their voices in song to the glory of God and country ever since their wagon trains pulled up to the Great Salt Lake in the year 1847.

They are The Mormon Tabernacle Choir... and that once-upon-a-time tiny choir is now recognized as one of the greatest musical forces in America's history. The Mormon Tabernacle Choir is today a battalion-size force of 325 glorious voices...a choir which, when it raises its voices as one mighty sound, can bring tears to your eyes, goosebumps to your skin, and spirit to your heart.

A historic 2-part collection has just been released of their most cherished performances on two compact discs and tapes. The first is called Faith Of Our Fathers. And it was truly their faith which got us here, and it was many of these songs and hymns of praise which they brought westward as they crossed the great divide. Here is the Mormon Choir singing the same songs many of their mothers and dads sang in the very same way...in the very same choir. And when people try to tell you that we are on the brink of losing our values in America, our traditions, just play them a few selections from this stunning treasury. Play them A Mighty Fortress Is Our God, or Rock Of Ages, and The Lord Is My Shepherd...thrill to the glory of Onward, Christian Soldiers and just feel yourself wanting to march onward indeed!

These are the songs, the hymns, the prayers set to music, which have kept us together, and will continue to do so. And here they are sung by the very choir which local choirs around our entire nation hold up as their model, the one which sets the standard for American vocal music world-wide.

If you have never heard the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, you are in for the treat of a lifetime!

America In Song

The second album in this collection contains the wonderful music from the very roots of our great country, and sings of its beauty, its meaning to all of us. From America The Beautiful, to the heart-touching Aura Lee. They sing This Is My Country with their heads held high. There is the rhythmic and hypnotic Ring The Banjo, the always beautiful Home On The Range, and Stephen Foster's immortal Beautiful Dreamer, the glorious and moving Shenandoah, and the most patriotic song ever written, The Battle Hymn Of The Republic. Enjoy both of these Wacky Russkie doc says...

DRINK A QUART OF BOOZE OR MORE A DAY!

DRINKING plenty of alcohol can even slow the aging process, says Dr. Ignatov.

By HAL STANLEY / Correspondent

MOSCOW, Russia — Forget about drinking three glasses of wine a day for good health — you can add 10 years to your life by drinking three BOTTLES of wine a day, says one doctor!

"Consumption of alcohol is the key to good health — and most people don't get nearly enough," says oddball Dr. Boris Ignatov. "The average man should finish off three bottles of wine before dinner and drink 10 to 12 cocktails every day."

Several studies have shown that moderate alcohol consumption helps reduce heart disease — but Dr. Ignatov stretches those facts to the limit.

"If everyone drank as much as I advised them to, we could totally wipe out heart disease — and many other health ailments."

Dr. Ignatov, a former professor at the University of Moscow, said people should begin drinking early in the morning and continue until they go to bed at night.

"Office workers should have a cocktail sitting on their desks at all times," he said.

"Part of the reason people don't get enough alcohol is that they are afraid to drink at work."

Dr. Ignatov says all businesses should offer open bars for employees during work hours.

"The best way to relieve stress in the office is for employees to have a few drinks," he said. "Happy workers are productive workers."

Besides the evidence of reduced stress and heart disease, Dr. Ignatov said extreme alcohol consumption can lead to healthier intestinal organs, increased alertness and weight loss.

The goofy doctor, 64, said there is some evidence alcohol can even slow aging. "This likely happens when alcohol slows down your metabolism — but I haven't done enough research to state this as fact."

Other experts have harshly criticized Dr. Ignatov's opinions.

"I don't know where he got his information but I think he's probably been hitting the bottle a little too much himself," said Dr. Mikhail Svoren. "It's true that moderate alcohol consumptioncan help stop heart disease — but this idiot wants to make public drunkenness a way of life."

But Dr. Ignatov stands behind his beliefs.

"I spent a lot of time in heart wards and I can tell you I've never seen a drunk in any one of them," he said. "The same goes for people with other ailments — most of them spend all their time stone-cold sober."

You'll add 10 years to your life!

MEDICAL WARNING:

Any U.S.-trained physician would consider Dr. Ignatov's advice to be pure madness. His drinking regime has probably cost many patients their lives.

Two or three bottles of wine at dinner and 10 to 12 cocktails a day is okay, he says!

CONFEDERATE SOLDIE

'They are still fighting the Civil

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — There are increasing reports that a ragtag band of Confederate soldiers still roams the rugged Appalachian Mountains of eastern Tennessee — refusing to believe the Civil War ended 129 years ago.

"They look like something out of a time machine with their muskets, musket balls, beards and tattered gray uniforms," said Dr. Wayne Schroeder, a tourist who was held prisoner for several hours because the armed rebels thought he was a Yankee spy.

"When I mentioned that General Lee had surrendered at Appomattox Courthouse in 1865, I thought they were going to slit my throat. Damn they were mad."

By SCOTTY PAUL

Special report

Dr. Schroeder, a surgeon from Rhode Island, is one of at least a dozen tourists who have seen the five rebel soldiers, claiming to be still under the command of General Nathan Bedford Forrest.

Forrest was a brilliant soldier who commanded the cavalry in General John Bell Hood's Tennessee campaign.

He surrendered in April, 1865, and died 12 years later at the age of 56.

"They seem to be stuck in a time warp with no knowledge of anything that's happened in the world in more than a century," said an Atlanta businessman who claims to have confronted the bedraggled band near Rainbow Falls in December.

Weekly World News has learned that at least 10 other people, including a Baptist preacher from Chattanooga and his wife have seen the die-hard rebel soldiers within the last six years.

"They are absolutely filthy and live like wild animals, eating all kinds of wild game and drinking out of mountain springs," Dr. Schroeder explained.

"They said General Forrest ordered them to the high ground, up in the mountains, and that's where they are going to stay until told otherwise."

Dr. Schroeder took their picture, but the sergeant in command confiscated his camera.

Park Rangers and other Tennessee park officials declined to comment on the reports, but a leading psychiatrist said the many sightings of the Confederate soldiers suggests that we are dealing with something supernatural — specifically, a time warp.

"I have talked to some of the people who claim to have se the soldiers. They are intel gent and very credible peop and I believe them.

"You will recall that wounded Civil War priva Benjamin Couch, was found ing beside a Georgia highw more than three years ag the psychiatrist said.

"He had traveled to the 2 century through a time warp entered during the Battle Gettysburg in 1863. Perha that also explains the existen of the rebel band."

I can tell you the exact day you'll die

PATERSON, N.J. — A statistician can pinpoint, with chilling accuracy, the exact day of the week you're going to die!

Dr. Henry Whitcalfe, an actuarial sociologist, has an amazing 78 percent success rate in predicting the day a person will die. That means he's right almost eight times out of ten.

"If you know what day of the week you were born, I've worked out a simple chart that will show you the day you're most likely to expire," he says.

Dr. Whitcalfe, 44, spent 15 years compiling statistics for a nationally known life insurance company, and says that his most amazing discovery was that there is a clear and definite link between the day of our birth and the day of our death.

"In my research I noticed an intriguing statistic: Most Americans die on Monday, usually in the morning. They die of a variety of causes in a variety of ways, but Monday is the day.

"It made me curious so I dug deeper and discovered that most people are born on Friday.

"The next part was simple. I took the records of 1,000 people who died on Monday and looked up the day of their birth. Almost 80 percent of them were born on Friday."

From there, Dr. Whitcalfe looked at the birth and death days of another 3,000 people and found there was a clear-cut correlation.

"Not everyone wants to know what day they'll die," says the trained sociologist. "But knowing your 'at risk' day can help you plan your week.

"For instance, if you have some-

Cook put glob of spit on my fried chicken, says cop

By SCOTTY PAUL / Correspondent

LITTLETON, Colo. — A short-order cook was arrested after a cop allegedly found a glob of human spit on his order of fried chicken.

"It was sickening. The manager suggested it was chicken juice or oil, but it was spit, real nauseating human spit," said an officer who investigated the complaint.

Uniformed police Sgt. Larry Peterson became suspicious when he saw cook Peter Hatfield staring at him from the kitchen while he ate lunch with a friend.

Sgt. Peterson asked the waitress whether the cook had asked which order of chicken was for him.

"Well, as a matter of fact, yes," she replied.

But cook Hatfield said he wanted to know which plate was the officer's so that he could give him extra watermelon slices.

Hatfield said he was worried because the officer stared at him. He was afraid Sgt. Peterson may have arrested him in the past.

The cook thought the officer "might be mad about something so he decided to give him extra watermelon with his meal," the police report states.

Hatfield did not prepare the chicken but he did take the plates from another cook and put them on a counter for the waitress to deliver, witnesses told police.

Police charged Hatfield, 32, with two counts of disorderly conduct. The second count was filed because a civilian with Peterson was "unable to continue eating due to the incident."

Pick your pooch like you buy your shoes

Make sure he's a perfect fit, says expert!

SELECTING THE RIGHT breed of dog is serious business. This woman is giving a potential pet a very careful once over.

When buying a pooch to share your home, be sure to match him to your particular life-style. If you don't, you could find yourself chained to a nuisance or a misfit!

By TONY CASSIDY

"When a person decides to buy a dog, he should first educate himself about the breeds," explained Roy H. Carlberg, former executive secretary of the American Kennel Club.

"First and foremost, decide what qualities you want in a dog," he added. "Then determine how your home will fit the dog of your choice.

"Other considerations are neighbors, outside exercise facilities, allergies and, above all, how much time you're willing to devote to keeping your dog healthy."

John Howe, a consultant on dog breeds for Encyclopedia Americana and author of the book Choosing the Right Dog, says determining exactly what you want from a pet is a major consideration.

"Do you want a watchdog, an attack dog or just an animal friend to love and to share your life with?" he asks.

Once you decide, select a breed most suited to your needs. Here are a few hints from the experts that will help you make the right selection:

● For city or apartment dwellers, the experts recommend Boston terriers, pugs, toy and miniature poodles, Chihuahuas, corgis and Cairn terriers.

● Families with children, especially those that enjoy the outdoors, will be setters, collies and standard poodles.

● Those who want a guard dog should choose a German shepherd, mastiff, Belgian sheepdog, Chesapeake Bay retriever or, surprisingly, the English bulldog!

"The bulldog, when raised from puppyhood with children, will take all the abuse youngsters can dish out and still remain friendly and calm," Howe explained.

lives, he will immediately meet a ferocious guard dog that will not give an inch."

Another superb guard dog is the Doberman pinscher, Howe said, adding that "owners very often are frightened of them, too."

If you're a light sleeper, avoid getting a short-nosed dog — such as pugs, Pekingese, English bulldogs or Boston terriers — because they often

HOW TO BOOST YOUR MAN'S EGO WITH A PACK OF LIES!

The way to a man's heart is through his ego — not his stomach, says a top psychiatrist.

"Men crave flattery," said Dr. Mark Rubinstein. "It's easier to get men to believe compliments than women."

Dr. Rubinstein offered these tips on flattering a man:

● Sexuality. "Tell him he's good or great in bed," he said. "That's the greatest compliment you can give most men."

● Physical. "Tell him he's strong or masculine," Dr. Rubinstein said. "Or tell him what a great body he has — specific compliments that imply masculinity."

● Appearance. "Tell him how good looking he is," the doctor said. "Or pick out one feature such as his eyes. But don't call him cute — most men think it's reserved for women and puppies."

● Sensual. "Tell him you love the sound of his voice," Dr. Rubinstein said. "Or that you like the way he smells, the feel of his skin or the color of his eyes."

● Occupation. "Flatter his job abilities," the expert said. "Tell him that he's good at his job and that his job must be exciting."

● Husband & Father. "Say he is the greatest husband a woman could ever have," he said. "Tell him he's great with the kids. Or that it's wonderful the way he gives up his weekends to be with the family."

● Intelligence. "Flatter his intelligence," Dr. Rubinstein said. "This is always safe because even people who aren't intelligent think they are."

● Dress & Grooming. "Say his suits always look good on him," the psychiatrist said. "Or that he looks like Mel Gibson."

SIAMESE TWINS ARE NEW YORK CITY DANCE CHAMPS!

Bobby Kraller and his brother Ed like to trip the light fantastic, dancing with their girlfriends into the wee hours of the morning — even though their bodies are joined at the back!

The 46-year-old Siamese twins have been winning dance contests around their hometown of New York City since they were in their teens.

Every Saturday night they make the rounds of nightclubs with a pretty gal on their arms and boogaloo around the dance floor until their shoes wear out.

"We don't let our physical problems get in our way," says Bobby, who co-owns a florist shop with his brother. "We figure we only have one life to live and we want to have as much fun as we can.

"We've been dancing together for years now, so we don't have any problem coordinating. We just get into the music and let ourselves go."

Bobby and Ed are attached at the lower spine and they share several vital internal organs. When they were born in 1948 doctors decided they could not be separated, so the twins have remained joined back-to-back all their lives.

But although their handicap draws stares and comments from strangers, the outgoing twins have never let it get in their way.

They have devised a crab-like way of walking in which one twin moves forward while the other goes backward and they go to work, shop and carry on like normal folks in spite of their physical problems.

The friendly brothers are popular in their neighborhood and have never had any problems finding dates. It was at their high school prom that they first got up the courage to take a spin around the dance floor — and they've been hooked on dancing ever since.

"It's a great way to meet people and it's good for us," says Ed, the more talkative of the two. "Let's face it, jogging and playing tennis just aren't in the cards for us, so dancing is a great way to get exercise. We have gotten so that we are telepathic.

"I know just what steps Bobby is going to take and he knows what I'm going to do, so we can coordinate our movements automatically.

"What's really great is that our girlfriends have as much fun as we do. We can always get gals to go out with us because they know we're the best dancers around."

The twins have won dance contests and trophies in the New York area — and they even have a club of 237 adoring fans who follow them from contest to contest, cheering them on as they rumba, cha-cha, waltz, foxtrot and boogie their way to the top.

"Sure, they're funny looking the first time you see them," said one fan, who so fantastic that after a while you just forget all about the fact that they're Siamese twins.

"And the steps they've invented so that they can go through the moves are totally unique. It's no wonder they win all these contests. There's nothing else like them in the world of dance.

No. 1 problem facing women in the 90s

HOW TO STOP SEXUAL HARASSMENT ON THE JOB!

By MELISSA JAMES / Correspondent

Millions of American women experience sexual harassment on the job — but they can deal with this serious problem by following some commonsense advice, a leading expert reports.

"Sexual harassment happens to women regardless of age, race, economic background or title," said Susan Meyer, an expert on sexual harassment in the workplace. "We define it as any unwanted attention of a sexual nature in the workplace. This can range from leering and telling obscene jokes to making comments about a woman's body and actual physical touching and demands.

"Sexual harassment provides an intolerable working condition. For years women have tried to ignore it, tolerate it or have just left their jobs. But you shouldn't have to leave your job to escape it. Realize that what you are suffering is, in fact, a form of discrimination which is totally unlawful."

Here's how women can fight back against lecherous superiors:

● Let the offender know as tactfully as possible that you don't like his attention. "It's important not to just sit there and take it, because the man may interpret your silence as accepting his behavior," said Meyer. "Make your complaint to him short and to the point.

"You might tell him that this situation is seriously interfering with your ability to do your work.

"Don't confront him when you are angry, but do confront him as soon as you feel able to. Explain that you want to do a good job, but are unable to as long as you are receiving that kind of attention."

● Keep a diary of all incidents, in case the offender tries to fire you. "Keep names, dates, what he said or did, and what you said or did," advised Meyer. "This will give you the advantage if you have to take your case to your superiors or to court."

● Formally complain to your firm's personnel office or grievance committee, even if you're sure it won't do any good. "If the case comes to court, you want to be able to say that the company knew about it but took no action.

"Reporting it in this way may also let the offending man know you mean business and may embarrass him into leaving you alone."

● If you lose your job, file a complaint with your state human rights commission or the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. "It may help you get your job back, and will help others by documenting the problem," said Meyer.

Experts point out that the increasing number of sexual harassment court cases brought by women makes it easier for women to warn male offenders that what they are doing is illegal. If men know what they're doing could spell legal troubles, they may be less apt to continue the harassment.

New study... Drinking doesn't kill your brain cells!

An astonishing new study proves it beyond the shadow of a doubt: heavy drinking doesn't destroy brain cells — it just temporarily disconnects them!

And that means people who suffer memory loss and lowered IQs after years their minds and memories as soon as they go on the wagon.

Dr. Bente Pakkenberg is the Danish scientist who conducted the research. He said the findings "give hope" to chronic drinkers who seem to have suffered

Prison officials turn vicious criminals into gentle lambs — BY GETTING THEM FAT!

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Swedish prison officials are turning vicious criminals into mild-mannered lambs — by getting them fat!

A new study by noted criminologist Gunnar Nilsson has shown that overweight people are 20 times less likely to commit violent crimes than slim people.

And what's more, overeating actually curbs aggressive behavior.

"This is the most astounding crime-prevention discovery in history," says Dr. Nilsson.

"We may have isolated the leading cause of violent crime. And we're able to treat it with the simplest medicine imaginable — food."

Dr. Nilsson studied 108 murderers, rapists and gang fighters at Sweden's Turesson Prison, all of whom were of normal weight.

"Three months before they were due to be released on parole, we put half of them on a high-fat high-calorie diet to fatten them up. They gained an average of 37 pounds.

"We kept the other group at the same weight.

"To our amazement, only two of the 'fat' group returned to violent crime as compared to 41 of the 'lean' group."

Sven Persson, a career criminal convicted of knifing three people said gaining 46 pounds has transformed his life from a living nightmare of anger into a wonderful happy adventure.

"Back when I was thin, I used to constantly pick fights and look for trouble," says Persson.

"Now that I'm fat, I just don't have the energy to go around hating people."

Nilsson's contemporaries are baffled by his test results but the 47-year-old expert on antisocial behavior has a theory:

"It's simple biology," says Dr. Nilsson.

"Back when man had to hunt for his food, the hungrier he got, the more aggressive he needed to be. Aggression served him well by making him a better hunter.

"Now that we no longer have to hunt for our food, there's no need for that fierceness. But it's still in our genes.

"Folk wisdom has always said fat people are jolly. Maybe this is the reason."

Dr. Nilsson is not without his critics. Sociologist Dr. Jan Aarndt says, "You violate the rights of these prisoners when you endanger their lives by making them fat. Overweight people are more prone to heart disease, cancer and diabetes."

But Dr. Nilsson defends his felon fattening program.

"What about the rights of the law-abiding citizen to walk the streets without fear of getting beaten or murdered?"

Pregnancy reduces ovarian cancer in women!

A woman's chances of developing ovarian cancer declines each time she becomes pregnant. The risk dips by 15 percent to 40 percent after the first pregnancy, then by at least 10 percent with every subsequent pregnancy, according to Alice Whittemore, epidemiologist at Stanford University School of Medicine.

Inventor of electronic housewife makes shocking claim...

New robot will make women obsolete by the year 2000!

HANNOVER, Germany—A top scientist has come up with the ultimate household convenience: An electronic housewife!

That's right, the high-tech inventor has perfected a robot woman called the FeminAll that can clean, cook and even give birth to test-tube babies — meaning that women will be totally obsolete by the year 2000!

"It's a great triumph of scientific skill," said elated physicist and engineer Manfred Wurtzmann, who developed the remarkable robot. "This robot can duplicate every act of a living woman — and outdo her in almost every single area.

"It was my aim to produce the perfect woman, and I have."

Dr. Wurtzmann unveiled his creation at a press conference on December 22. The gleaming mannequin-like device is powered by special batteries that can be recharged at night by plugging into a normal electrical outlet. It looks exactly like a woman, with arms, legs, a human face and long black hair. The amazing appliance moves like a human, dusting, scrubbing, and doing laundry with natural, human-like motions. It is dressed in a short black uniform and minces in a feminine way when it walks on its shapely legs.

"It never talks back because it can't talk at all," brags Dr. Wurtzmann, who admits he got the idea for his invention after his wife of three years divorced him. "It is quick to respond to its owner's needs, it is quiet and efficient and it costs nothing to run.

"Originally I thought of it as just a household appliance, but when the FeminAll was nearly done I decided it wouldn't be complete without the capacity to produce a human child. That's when I began working on getting it to incubate a human fetus."

The incredible robot is equipped with a special womb-like container that can supply oxygen and nutrients to a developing fetus. The human child must be created in a laboratory by fertilizing a donated egg with sperm. The fetus can then be inserted in the FeminAll's reproduction chamber, where it will grow to maturity.

"I have tested the reproduction chamber with animal babies and it works perfectly," Dr. Wurtzmann says. "I have no doubt it will work just as

New scientific study proves...

TV IS GREAT FOR YOU

By KELLY FRANCES / Correspondent

TV really does relax you — it's been proved scientifically!

Expert Bill Harvey says that brain wave tests of thousands of viewers have shown that when they watched TV, their brain changed from the beta state, which is associated with active thinking, into the slower alpha state, which is linked to relaxation.

"Most of the time people are in the beta state and can't release stress," said Harvey. "When they come home, they're happy to see TV which produces more alpha waves and relaxes them.

"As soon as they start to watch TV, their brain waves slow down into the alpha state. But the viewers go back to the beta state when they see something thought-provoking such as a man seeing a beautiful girl.

"Even so, the brain relaxes again and goes back into the alpha state," said Harvey.

"Alpha waves produce a relaxing effect — a pleasurable effect.

"Based on all the studies that I've seen and all the experts I've talked to, more than 10,000 subjects have had their brain waves measured while viewing television. Researchers report an overall slowing down of brain waves to the alpha state during viewing as compared to non-viewing.

"If there was no TV and you were sitting and watching a fire in the fireplace you'd get increased alpha waves. Getting a massage increases alpha waves.

"In a similar way, TV massages your brain and relaxes you.

"TV lets you be in the alpha state because it keeps you totally busy so you can't think," said Harvey.

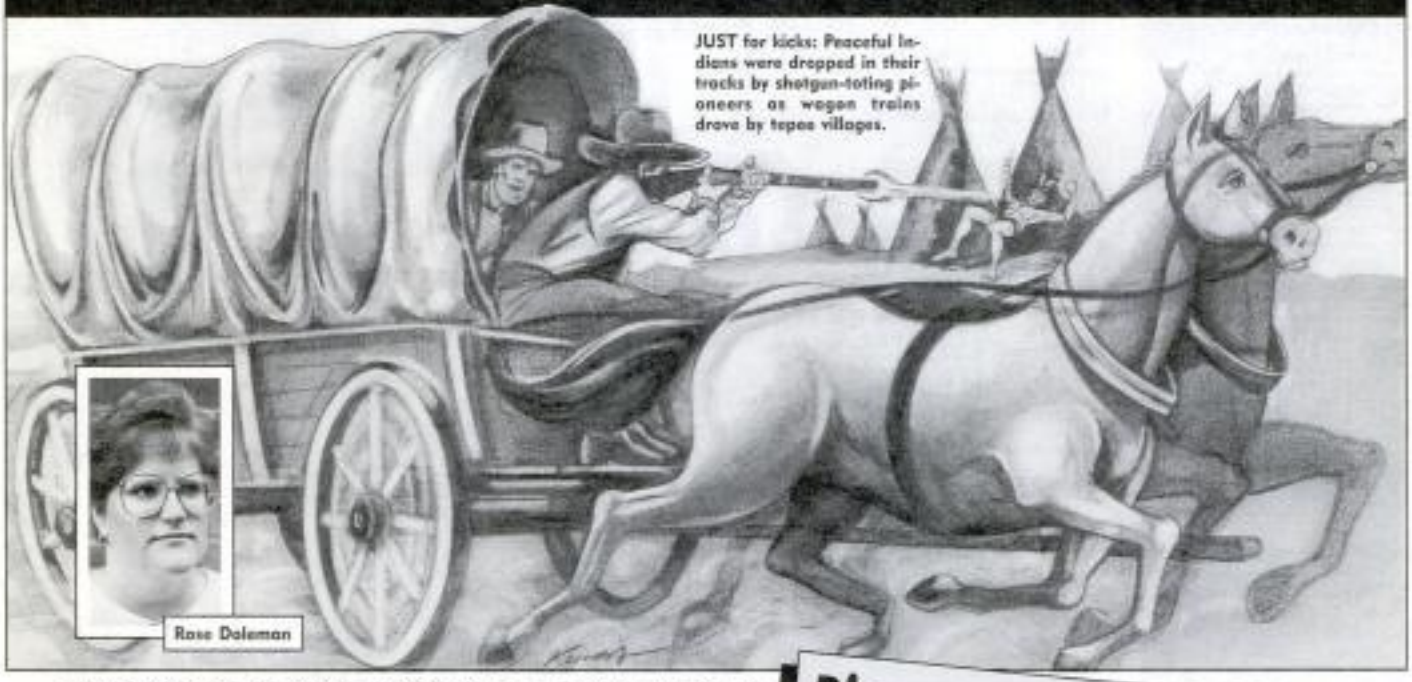
AMERICA'S FIRST DRIVE-BY SHOOTINGS



JUST for kicks: Peaceful Indians were dropped in their tracks by shotgun-toting pioneers as wagon trains drove by tepee villages.

Rose Doleman

Pioneers took potshots at Indians — just for fun!

Drive-by shootings aren't anything new — they started with the pioneers who were heading west in covered wagons!

"Thousands of Indians were killed while they sat in their tepees," says historian Rose Doleman of Casper, Wyo. "Pioneers would just start firing away without even stopping their wagons.

"These were clearly history's first drive-by shootings."

By DAVID MILLS
Correspondent

Today's drive-by shootings involve cars full of wayward teens driving around gunning down innocent pedestrians in cities like New York and Los Angeles.

"Back in the 1840s half a million pioneers traveled from the Midwest to the Oregon coast," Miss Doleman said. "Along the way they left a trail of death among Indians who had lived in the areas for many generations."

Miss Doleman has spent several years tracing Indian legends that involve the shootings by the white-face intruders. But her strongest evidence is a 150-year-old diary kept by a pioneer named Bill Mann that details the senseless killings.

"The diary has dozens of entries detailing how the pioneers would ride through Indian villages with their guns blazing," she said. "Many times the Indians would be sleeping when the attacks occurred.

"Often they would carefully pick and choose their victims," she said. "Often they would wait until the tribe's warriors were out hunting and then come through shooting the Indian women and children."

Miss Doleman said boredom and heavy doses of alcohol contributed to the shootings.

"The diary says the pioneers did a lot of drinking during the seemingly endless hours in the wagon trains," ready for action when they came across an Indian tribe.

"It became sport for them to see how many Indians they could shoot," she said. "It was like a human shooting gallery."

But few if any of the trigger-happy pioneers were ever punished for their deeds.

"They were making their getaways at the same time they committed the crimes," Miss Doleman said. "The Indi-

MAN GETS 5 YEARS — FOR MOONING SECURITY CAMERA!

NABBED! Lorenzo Chavez got 5 years behind bars for baring his butt in a bank.

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Correspondent

RIO NEGRO, Argentina — Fun-loving cutup Lorenzo Chavez mooned the security camera in a bank — and got five long years in prison!

"I was just trying to cheer people up," said Chavez, explaining why he pulled his pants down and showed his bare buttocks to surveillance cameras at one of South America's most conservative banks. "The lines were long and everyone was in a bad mood.

"I was trying to make everyone laugh. I guess I got a little carried away and thought it would be funny to moon the camera. I admit it was a silly thing to do but I don't deserve this. They're taking away five years of my life. You can bet I'm going to appeal it."

Many who witnessed the mooning were also shocked by the sentence.

"I thought he was really funny," says Maria Zamora, 21. "He started making faces at the camera as if he was on TV. We were all laughing. When he mooned the camera it didn't seem dirty, just silly. He doesn't deserve five years."

Chavez was convicted of indecent exposure and given the maximum sentence by Judge Carlos Munoz.

"Respect for law and order is breaking down in these times," said Judge Munoz.

"I hope this five-year sentence sends a message to other smart alecks who would mock society's standards of decency."

But Chavez's attorney, Diego Santos, called the judgment hostile and vindictive.

"When my client pleaded guilty, we expected that he would be put on probation and pay a small fine. Five years is insanely excessive."

Officials at El Gran Banco National de Argentina are applauding the judge's decision.

"Chavez dishonored our fine institution," says bank president Raoul DeJesus.

"Now he has a nice long time to think about how to conduct himself in civilized society."

Chavez has no criminal record and friends describe him as a good-natured man who wouldn't harm a fly.

FRENCH WANT TO BAN THE PHRASE 'GAY PAREE'

By JOE BERGER / Staff writer

Ticked-off French officials want to banish the phrase "Gay Paree" from books, magazines and newspapers the world over — for fear foreigners will think Paris is a city of sissies!

"Paris is not the San Francisco of Europe — and damn it, we don't want people believing it is," fumed straitlaced City Commissioner Claude Gissier.

"But every time some idiot writer gushes on about the pleasures of 'Gay Paree,' readers picture a city full of homosexuals sashaying up and down the streets, kissing and cooing and holding hands. It's gotten so bad, even the homosexuals themselves think this is some kind of gay heaven, and they're starting to swarm here from the four corners of the earth. We've discussed it and the whole city council feels it's time to put a stop to this mess — and put a stop to it right now."

The indignant commissioner and his cronies admit that foreigners have fondly referred to Paris as "Gay Paree" for nearly a century — but they say the term has taken on a sleazy new meaning in recent years.

"Back in the heyday of the Folies Bergere, writers around the world began calling this beautiful city 'Gay Paree' in recognition of our fabulous nightlife and the lighthearted air of our people," said miffed mayor's assistant

EIFFEL TOWER draws millions of visitors to Paris every year. Officials are fighting to keep the image of the city from going down the tubes.

Nickname makes Paris sound like it's a city of sissies, say French bigwigs

Paris to potential tourists around the world. But now, Paree no longer wants to be thought of as quite so gay, if you know what I mean."

Skittish city officials are launching a high-powered public relations campaign aimed at persuading writers, editors and publishers to avoid the hateful phrase. And Commissioner Gissier says he'll ask the French government to crack the whip against any country whose writers refuse to play along.

"Frenchmen are the greatest lovers on earth, and no red-blooded Parisian wants to hear his favorite city called 'Gay Paree,'" fumed the exasperated official. "From now on, anybody who wants to talk about 'Gay Paree' had better watch his step — because to every patriotic Frenchman, those are fighting words, my friend."

ENVIRA, Brazil — An entire town of 6,800 people is being eaten alive — by a stinging army of tiny fire ants.

The deadly swarm has killed animals, sent dozens of children to the hospital and bitten everyone in this town on the banks of an Amazon River tributary. Desperate townsfolk have tried to kill the attacking ants with boiling water, gasoline, fire and pesticides, but nothing stops them. Meanwhile, the marauding ants — who attack vegetables, animals and people — continue to multiply.

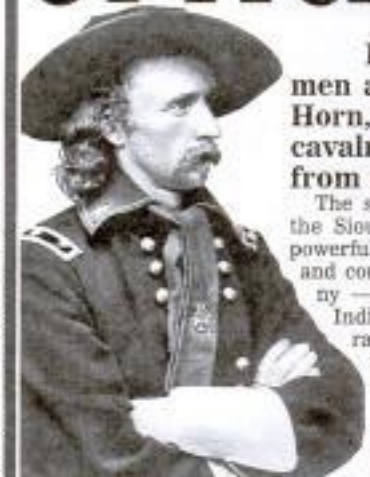
Flying saucers blasted 7th Cavalry

CUSTER'S LAST STAND SHOCKER! UFOs blast away at Col. Custer's cavalrymen in NEWS artist Dick Kulpa's rendition of the famed battle.

SPACE ALIENS HELPED



Even if Col. George Armstrong Custer had led 10,000 men against the Sioux in the 1876 battle at the Little Big Horn, they still would have been massacred — because the cavalrymen were zapped dead in their saddles by aliens from outer space!

By MICKEY McGUIRE

Special report

The spacemen — whom the Sioux looked upon as powerful gods who guided and controlled their destiny — also bathed each Indian in an invisible ray that made them invincible and unable to be killed.

Experts now believe it was those protective rays that left mysterious ultraviolet burns on the bodies of the dead soldiers and on the earth at the battle site — scars that baffled scientists and historians for more than a decade.

"These scars can only be seen through special infrared

The scars and the incredible role played by alien beings in the famed battle known as Custer's Last Stand came to light when computers finally managed to decipher electronic data taken from the wreckage of a UFO that crashed near Roswell, N.M., in the

"And, of course, if they recorded the events, they more than likely were the same aliens who helped the Sioux win the battle.

"The data reveals that the aliens made certain there were no white survivors," Frobel said. "Custer and all of his men had to die. None could survive." Frobel said the spacemen knew they couldn't allow a surviving soldier to tell how some Sioux warriors couldn't be killed even when shot at point-blank range.

BREMEN, Germany — Caretaker Heinz Korber married his way into a fortune — by tying the knot with a wealthy clod of dirt!

The 55-year-old bachelor had been watching over the lump of soil since his employer Heinrich Wechmar died in 1991 and left $2 million for its care. He swears he fell in love with the dirt ball — a relic from the grave of Wechmar's dead wife — and decided to marry it so he could make legal decisions about its future.

. . . so he can inherit $2 million!

"I know this seems an odd thing to do," concedes Korber, whose bizarre marriage was upheld by a court after Wechmar's relatives contested it. "But after taking care of the lump for so many months, I developed a deep fondness for it. And I was getting paid to watch over it anyway — this way we keep the money in the family."

Korber was in the news two years ago when multi-millionaire Wechmar died, leaving his estate to the chunk of dirt and appointing him caretaker. The lump of reddish-brown soil was the only remaining vestige of Wechmar's wife's grave, which had been paved over when a cemetery was obliterated to make way for an industrial complex.

For 20 years Wechmar had kept his beloved clod on a specially-designed satin pillow in a humidity-controlled environment, lavishing love and affection on it. The old man talked to it, slept with it and took it everywhere he went. When he died, he left his fortune to it so that it could continue to receive the best care.

CARETAKER Heinz Korber proudly displays his new bride — a dirt clod.

"I was afraid that my love for the dirt was contagious," Korber said. "I found myself caring more and more about what happened to the clod. And after my employer died, my feelings just got stronger.

"A few months ago, I decided to make our relationship official. I knew that I would have to fight off Wechmar's relatives who were trying to get control of the dirt, so I figured that a marriage would help protect the bequest."

Wechmar's relatives say Korber's sweet talk about loving the clod is garbage and that he married it for money.

"This man is a calculating money-grubber," fumed Wechmar's cousin Klaus Stolten-

KILLER DIAMONDS!

Gems from Russian mine are radioactive, says top scientist

Thousands of diamonds from a Russian mine are being recalled — because they're radioactive and could cause illness, deformity and death to their owners!

By ANN VICTORIA
Correspondent

Former Communist Party official Igor Vanovitch has finally admitted to the world what many Russian officials knew for years: That the Petrosian mine in northeast Russia is located underneath a nuclear power plant and that the diamonds excavated there are loaded with deadly radioactivity.

YOUR RING could be hazardous to your health.

"Who knows just how many people may be in danger of fatal immune system deficiencies, cancer, even birth defects in their babies?" says Vanovitch.

The mine, located 200 miles north of Moscow near the Rybinsk Reservoir, thrived for years with no problems before the Azamatov power plant was built above it in 1969.

"When we allowed the plant to be built over the mine we had no idea that the radioactivity would spread.

"But over the years, the nuclear waste seeped through the ground and poisoned the diamonds.

"Now that the USSR has been dissolved and East-West relations are improving, it's time for us to take responsibility for our mistake and alert the owners about the toxic gems," says Vanovitch. "But many experts are afraid tracking them won't be all that easy."

Vanovitch says most of the dangerous diamonds were sold in the 11-year period between 1978 and 1989 to exclusive clients from private markets in Belgium, France and Switzerland.

But a few may have made their way, second- or third-hand, to America.

Dr. Miklos Korstopolis, a noted physicist and expert on radioactivity, suggests that if you have doubts about your rings, bracelets or earrings you should get them checked out by a reliable Geiger counter as soon as possible.

PHYSICIST Dr. Miklos Korstopolis advises people to have their jewelry tested.

"If you don't have access to a Geiger counter, however, there are three other tests that will indicate whether or not your diamonds may have been contaminated," says Dr. Korstopolis.

1) Turn the lights out and make your room completely dark. Does your gem glow with a greenish brilliance?

2) When you put your ear close to your diamond, do you hear a faint humming sound?

3) Do you sometimes feel tired for no reason at all after wearing your diamond for several hours?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, Dr. Korstopolis suggests that you stop wearing your diamonds immediately and get them officially tested.

"This is definitely a case of better safe than sorry."

Getting out of bed can kill you, new study says

Getting out of bed is a lot tougher on the old ticker than having sex, says a startling new study.

Only 1 percent of heart attacks are triggered by sexual activity while 10 percent were caused by simply waking up, said Dr. James Muller, who surveyed 1,712 men and women.

But the Harvard Medical School researcher isn't telling folks to stay in bed and give up sex.

"This information shouldn't be used to scare people, or to say that sex is a dangerous activity," Dr. Muller said.

'SPACE ALIENS GAVE ME A MIRACLE MEDICINE!'

ALIENS gave the formula for a miracle potion to all mankind.

By LISA MERAKIS / Correspondent

Healer Lavinia Ritkiss has a miracle potion that cures everything from acne to old age — and she got the formula from a delegation of extraterrestrials!

The Los Angeles health guru says her amazing "space syrup" was a gift from the aliens to all of mankind and that anyone can prepare it from common ingredients.

"This syrup is truly amazing," said Mrs. Ritkiss, 57, who used the miracle medicine to cure her arthritis. "It costs just pennies to make, yet after a few weeks of taking it your whole physical and mental condition changes for the better. It contains many ingredients that humans use to improve health, but the formula, which the aliens' advanced science has produced, combines these ingredients in a new and different way and it has a remarkable impact on the body.

"The aliens told me that it affects the electrical energy of the body, reversing negative impulses that bring about disease and unhealthy emotions. I take a teaspoon every day and I know that it has worked wonders for me. Now the aliens want me to spread the word so that the maximum number of humans will learn about it and use it."

Los Angeles healer claims formula can cure anything

Mrs. Ritkiss, who runs a healing center that offers natural products and new age cures, says she encountered the aliens last fall while she was working in her office behind the store. The seven small green creatures appeared out of thin air, she says, and they used their huge glowing eyes to immobilize her.

"They just appeared in the corner of my office and they seemed very loving and concerned," Mrs. Ritkiss recalled. "They told me they had great affection and respect for humans and wanted to help us with this gift.

"I couldn't move or speak, but I wasn't afraid. I felt like I was dreaming — and when I woke up the spacemen were gone and the recipe was sitting on the desk in front of me."

Mrs. Ritkiss says she mixed up a batch of the syrup the next day and — because it contained nothing she felt would harm her — she took a teaspoonful every day for a month to see what would happen.

"I couldn't believe what it did for me," she says. "My arthritis is gone, teeth and hair are different. I feel like a teenager again.

"Since then I have shared the recipe with hundreds of people, and it has cured everything — acne, heart disease, depression, and even cancer. The syrup is so wonderful, and I know I have to tell everybody about it. It's a miracle gift — a token of love from outer space."

Mrs. Ritkiss says she plans to distribute a free pamphlet on the space syrup recipe sometime later this year. In the meantime, however, she is providing Weekly World News readers with the formula so they can use it and start enjoying good health right away.

SECRET PLOT TO FREE CHARLES MANSON

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

A band of drug-brained hippie jerks are hatching a secret plot to free one of the most demented killers ever locked behind bars — madman cult guru Charles Manson!

The rat-faced runt is serving life sentences for ordering the savage Helter-Skelter murders of seven people, including pregnant Hollywood film beauty Sharon Tate.

Now, like vermin festering up from the sewer, a swarm of misfits and malcontents sporting shaved heads and stained white robes hope to do the unthinkable — get Manson released from prison. According to reports, almost 100 men and women in their late teens and early 20s will take to the streets armed with fliers and petitions calling for Manson to be paroled.

Bloody cult wants him out — so he can kill again!

Their carefully prepared plan — crafted by professional campaigners sympathetic to Manson — calls for personal threats, intimidation and outright acts of violence to achieve success.

"These people scare the hell out of me," admitted a now-retired homicide cop who saw firsthand the slaughter that Manson's disciples carried out in Sharon's Beverly Hills estate.

The ex-cop, who was one of the key figures in bringing Manson and his followers to justice, asked not to be identified to protect his family.

"They want Manson out so he can start another family and be their father. Then they can all live in the hills and smoke dope and make love to each other like Squeaky Fromme, Leslie Van Houten and those other fiends were doing back when he was on the loose. What scares me is that these new wackos are just as dangerous as the others were. All Manson would have to do is say, 'Go kill somebody,' and they'd lick their chops and go do it."

That's exactly what happened on the night of Aug. 9, 1969, when, on Manson's explicit instructions, Charles "Tex" Watson, Patricia Krenwinkel, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten staged a massacre that shocked and outraged the nation.

When the butchers finally finished their vicious act, fee heiress Abigail Folger, writer-producer Voyteck Frykowski, hairstylist Jay Sebring and Steven Parent — were dead.

The five had been shot, clubbed and stabbed repeatedly while Sharon begged to be allowed to live for the sake of her unborn baby.

Instead, the fiends used Sharon's blood to scrawl crazed slogans and words like

Two nights later, the slaughter was repeated in the home of Leno and Rosemary La Bianca.

"Manson is one of the most evil, satanic men who's ever walked the face of the earth," the former cop said. "If he gets out of prison, he'll start killing all over again.

"There isn't much chance that he will get out . . . but

MAN EATEN

. . . minutes after he saves fiancee from killer beasts

HEROIC Lawrence Collier sacrificed his life to rescue his fiancee.

SURVIVORS: Janice Gruber, above, and Judith Damien, left, were both attacked by lions in separate incidents.

By KEVIN CREED / Correspondent

NAIROBI, Kenya — A man's heroic effort to save his fiancee from lions ended in tragedy when the ferocious beasts tore him apart and ate him!

But because of his courage, the woman herself escaped with only minor injuries.

The fatal attack occurred in the Masai Mara Game Preserve where a similar disaster took place just two years ago.

"He gave up his life to save mine," the badly shaken woman told reporters. "He's the bravest man I've ever known and now he's dead because of me."

New Zealand tourists Judith Damien and Lawrence Collier were taking photos of some lions in a holding pen when Miss Damien got too close to the edge, lost her footing and fell in.

"Those horrible animals started coming toward me, blocking my way to the only place that I saw to climb out to safety. I started to pray that death would come quickly. I just didn't think I had a chance.

"But when one of the lions took a swipe at me and clawed my arm, Lawrence suddenly jumped into the pen. He ran at them, shouting at the top of his lungs and waving, desperately trying to distract them from me."

Witnesses said Collier even took off his shirt and waved it to draw the lions' attention.

Finally the hungry animals turned away from Miss Dami-

ABE LINCOLN'S GHOST HAUNTS D.C.

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Correspondent

Doctors revived the corpse of Abraham Lincoln in a history-making experiment last September — and now his ghost stalks the halls of a Washington hospital!

The scientists had reburied the former President's body in response to a public outcry against their ghoulish experiment. But sources at Walter Reed Army Medical Center say the spirit of Lincoln has not returned to the grave.

Instead, it has been spotted many times in the operating room where scientists brought his body back to life for an astounding 95 seconds. The eerie presence is so lifelike that a number of nurses have refused disturbed him and now Lincoln's ghost is unable to find peace," said one nurse who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The ghost appears to be lost or searching for something, and once or twice it has spoken, asking where it is.

"Most people don't want to go near that operating room, but I have been in there a number of times and seen the ghost. I feel sorry for Lincoln. They should have left him alone."

called Revivitol, which has been shown to stimulate regeneration in dead tissue. Doctors wanted to start up the heart of a dead man and perhaps restore basic brain function, and had chosen to work on the well-preserved remains of Lincoln to dramatize their work.

Incredibly, when they injected the wonder "resurrection drug" into Lincoln's body, the dead President moved, spoke and even wept during a breathtaking 95 seconds of consciousness. He then died again.

"The doctors were horrified when publicity about their experiment backfired and newspaper columnists like Russell scientists 'leave Abe alone,' " the Walter Reed nurse said. "So they quietly reburied Mr. Lincoln.

"A few days later, a friend of mine went into the room where the experiment was conducted and saw a tall, thin man standing there quietly. She asked him what he was doing and he turned toward her with this confused look on his face. She recognized him as Lincoln and was about to run from the room when the ghost vanished into thin air. She says she won't ever go back in that room."

Since then witnesses have seen Lincoln in the hospital hallways and in operating

"His bravery allowed me time to run to the wall, scale it and make my way out," said Miss Damien.

Refuge officials confirmed that the lions were the same ones that attacked and nearly killed German tourist Janice Gruber back in March of 1992.

That story made headlines all over the world. Weekly World News ran the report in the March 17, 1992 issue.

A spokesman for the Preserve said the lions were kept in the pen because all had formerly attacked humans and they were considered too dangerous to run free in the refuge.

The scientific team responsible for the Revivitol experiments has refused to comment on the ghostly rumors. But they say they are postponing further research into Revivitol until next year, pending a review of their work by the National Insti-

Baby born — with treasure map on its back!

By R. NEALE LIND
Correspondent

A destitute family found a $5 million fortune in buried rubies, gold and emeralds when they followed a treasure map — in a birthmark on their newborn baby's back!

"It's a miracle," says Alicia DeCastro, the baby's mother, who swears the staggering discovery happened as the result of her prayers. "Our finances were at an all-time low and we had no source of income. All we could do was pray.

"God sent the answer to our prayers — drawn out plain as day in a map on our baby's back. All we had to do was follow it."

Frank DeCastro, the child's father, also believes in the power of prayer. "We had no idea how we'd support another baby. I got laid off my job just two months after Alicia got pregnant and our savings were dwindling fast.

"This had to be the hand of God."

It was DeCastro himself who first noticed the strange map while studying the unusual birthmark under a magnifying glass.

"I was intrigued by that birthmark," says the proud dad from Cabezas, Nicaragua. "There seemed to be some kind of design in it, but I couldn't quite make out what it was. Something told me to look at it closer.

"When I put it under the magnifying glass, I was astounded to see that it was a crystal-clear, perfectly scaled map of our backyard with an X marking one corner."

Mr. and Mrs. DeCastro and their eight-year-old daughter Rosa all followed the map together.

"We all pitched in," says Mrs. DeCastro. "We dug about five feet down at the spot marked with the X.

"Our eyes almost popped out of our heads when we saw that rusty trunk. And when we opened it up, those gems were so shiny they almost blinded us."

Doctors are baffled by the otherwise normal infant who came into the world with the mysterious markings on his skin. "I've never seen anything like this in my entire 31-year career," says Dr. Earvin Marquez, the DeCastro's family pediatrician.

"But science doesn't know everything. Every doctor eventually learns that faith is a very powerful thing. Maybe it really was an answered prayer."

Experts estimate the treasure's value at a whopping $5 million. That leaves the DeCastros with a hefty $3 million after the Nicaraguan government takes its 40 percent cut for taxes.

One amazing sidelight of the story: Since the mind-boggling find, the birthmark has begun to fade from the tot's back. Doctors say it's slowly vanishing and will probably be completely gone by the child's first birthday.

"My wife insisted that I buy it. I did it for her. It turned out to be the best idea of her life. We soon won the first prize in the Lottery with our friends. We are all very happy with the way this has changed our life. Each one of us received a tremendous amount of money."

Luciano Ferraro, Verona, Italy

"It was truly a miracle. One month after I got The Miraculous Sundial I got a promotion at work. But that wasn't all. Two weeks later I won a brand new car in a raffle, and before the year was out I had gotten another promotion at work. It allowed me to be independent and begin a new life. I enjoy all my life has to offer now!"
